

Center To Hold Formal Opening

Formal opening of the new Hazard Clinic and Begley Realty Building on East Main Street will be held Saturday afternoon from 1 to 4 p. m. During this time, visitors will be taken on a guided tour of the building.

The public is invited to attend the opening. Under construction since May 1, 1957, the clinic and office building is an expansion of the old Begley Drug Store and Hazard Clinic, first constructed in 1947. The steel and yellow brick building was built at a cost of approximately a quarter-million dollars.

Upper floors of the building house offices, reception and treatment rooms for 87 physicians and dentists, a laboratory complete with X-ray facilities, and offices for the Hazard Coal Operator's Association and the Kentucky River Mining Institute. The first floor includes offices for an insurance agency, a beauty shop, a barber shop, book-keeping offices for the clinic, and the Begley Drug Store.

A 60-car parking lot adjoins the building.

One of the most modern buildings in Eastern Kentucky, it has been designed by the Begley Realty Company to meet the medical demands of this region.

The building has all-weather heating and air-conditioning, with control thermostats in each office, an elevator, vinyl floors, acoustical ceilings, copper piping and aluminum windows and doors. All wiring in the building is in conduit.

Offices for doctors and dentists have been designed and decorated to meet the requirements and tastes of each physician. Some of the private offices are paneled, others are paper and painted or combinations of the three finishes.

Thirteen rooms, of the second floor will be occupied by physicians and a dentist. Also on the second floor in the new addition are the offices of the Hazard Coal Operator's Association, including a private office for Fred Bullard, executive secretary, and a reception room. The offices adjoin those of the Kentucky River Mining Institute, which will occupy remodeled quarters on the second floor of the old Hazard Clinic.

The laboratory, x-ray rooms and offices and a reception room for one doctor are on the third floor. The 9x36 foot reception rooms accommodate 40 people in comfort.

The laboratory and x-ray department occupy four large rooms, two rooms each. Walls and floors of the x-ray room are lined in lead, covered with plaster, a feature which prevents overexposure to x-rays and one that is new to this region of Kentucky.

The laboratory, designed for general clinical procedures, will have a staff of three persons, including Mrs. Eugene Bullard, chief technologist, and Miss Allena Walker, assistant technologist. The third, an x-ray technician, will arrive in Hazard next week. Mrs. Bullard and Miss Walker are long-time residents of Hazard and have a combined 10 years experience in the medical profession.

The fourth floor of the building has offices, reception and examining rooms for four physicians.

Occupying the main floor are the Begley Drug Store, now being remodeled, the Etta Rose Beauty Shop, and C. Jack Barnett Insurance Agency, Dewey's Barber Shop, and the book-keeping office for the clinic.

In the construction, the drug store has been enlarged to include a private dining room and more space for the prescription department.

Physicians who will have offices in the building are Dr. E. E. Begley, Dentist, Dr. Eli Boggs, Dr. C. L. Combs, Dr. William F. O'Donnell, Dr. C. E. Rutledge, Dr. D. L. Upchurch, and Dr. C. H. Williams.

Construction of the building was by the SmithBrown Construction Co., of Hazard. Construction superintendent was Kenneth Tate.

Fire Chief Lists Precautions

City and county residents were given four fire precautions this week by Fire Chief Lawrence Sizemore.

The city fire chief said yesterday that while the city has been fortunate in having few fires during the present cold snap, the threat of fires from overheated stoves remains a constant danger.

Chief Sizemore listed the following precautions for home and business property owners:

1. Don't leave children, invalids and aged by themselves at home;

2. Instruct babysitters and employees on how to report a fire and what to do in the event of a fire;

3. When reporting a fire, say to the telephone operator: "I want to report a fire"—DON'T try to call by number.

4. If possible, have someone outside to direct firemen to the site of the fire.

Chief Sizemore reported only one fire this week—that at the home of Otis Sizemore, Carter Street, Walkertown. No damage was done when a pot-belly stove tipped over scattering flaming coals on the floor. Sizemore said the ashes and coal were returned to the stove by residents of the house.

The city fire chief again this week emphasized that every precaution should be taken to see that furnaces do not become overheated.

City To Hold Public Hearing On Land Laws

Two public hearings will be held at Hazard City Hall, Feb. 28th.

The first, taking up the city's proposed subdivision regulation will be held at 7:30 p. m.; this meeting will be followed by a hearing on the city's revised zoning ordinance. Both were given favorable readings before the Planning and Zoning Commission, Monday night.

The subdivision regulation, provided for under Kentucky statutes, gives the city the authority to control subdivision development within the city and for five miles outside the city limits.

Hazard's subdivision regulation, however, doesn't go that far outside the city. It includes an area to the Darfok intersection, the Hilton community, Airport Gardens, Meadow Branch drainage, and the Golf Course.

Purpose of the regulation is to prevent indiscriminate development of property.

The revised zoning ordinance is applicable only to the residents of the city.

The ordinance, approved by the commission, has been revised to provide a designated use for all land within the city of Hazard. Previously only certain areas of the community had been zoned.

Maps showing details of both regulations may be seen at the city hall.

Miss Stout's Role Lauded By Critics

The recent performance of Janet Stout, Hazard girl, has received high acclaim from reviewers who saw the production of Electra given at Transylvania College recently.

According to one review: "The play by Sophocles and directed by George L. Williams, the college drama head, included elaborate staging, an active Greek chorus and the promising dramatic ability of Miss Janet Stout. Miss Stout in the title role gives the outstanding performance of the all-student cast."

Another wrote: "The opening night performance of Janet Stout was outstanding. Although the pace of the Greek classic is much slower than modern drama, and the language far more stilted, Miss Stout made Electra real. Within moments she established the daughter of the murdered Agamemnon as a pitiful creature, physically and emotionally exhausted, living on a mixture of hatred for her mother and hope for revenge."

The role was described as "extremely taxing for any actress as Miss Stout is on stage during the entire performance." Miss Stout is in her junior year at Transylvania College and is recipient of a four-year drama scholarship based on her high school work in speech and drama. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Stout of Hazard.

Quarter Million Dollar Coffee

The quarter-million dollar Begley Realty Building addition got its start over a cup of coffee immediately after the flood last year. Here, three of the men instrumental in the construction of the building enjoy a cup of coffee upon completion of the building. From left, officials of the Begley Realty Co. are L. A. Hopper, secretary-treasurer, Dr. E. E. Begley, president, and M. H. Smith, vice-president.

Quarter-Million Dollar Cup Of Coffee Launched Begley Realty Building

By Fred W. Luigart, Jr.

Would you believe that a quarter-million dollar building can come out of a cup of coffee?

We don't know if coffee really keeps people awake, but one thing is certain—it can cause some big dreams and make them come true.

As originally planned, the Begley Realty Building was to have been a small drug store with three apartments on the second floor and parking out front for five or six cars.

The building holds its official opening this Saturday afternoon from 1 to 4 p. m. The public is invited to attend, and those who go will see little resembling the original concepts of the Begley Realty Building.

Instead, you tour and see:

1. A modern, four story clinic, complete with laboratory and X-ray facilities. The only one of its kind in this region.

2. A parking lot for 60 cars, serving the public and occupants of the building.

3. A large drug store undergoing remodeling.

4. A modern insurance agency and a well designed beauty shop and barber shop.

Needless to say—a far cry from what was to have been a drug store and apartment house!

The building was first started in 1947 by Dr. E. E. Begley, a local dentist, when his two brothers, Mark and Carl, returned from military service. The apartments upstairs he would rent out; Carl and Mark could run the drug store.

Only the idea of the drug store was carried through the construction stage. Apartments for the second floor got lost when four local physicians, the late Dr. J. E. Hagan, the late Dr. Martin Palmer, Dr. W. F. O'Donnell Jr. and Dr. C. L. Combs, formed the Hazard Clinic the same year. Dr. Hagan served as president until his death.

With only the Mt. Mary Hospital and the Hurst Snyder hospitals in Hazard then, these four doctors contacted Dr. Begley, suggesting that the second floor of the drug store be made into a clinic. The idea took hold. A year later, the Clinic added a new member, Dr. Eli Boggs.

And then came last year's flood, carrying in its wake not only mud and debris but also a few new ideas.

In the days immediately after the flood, three men and a woman sat down over a cup of coffee. What they talked about that day, you can see, Saturday.

As reconstructed of Dr. Begley, L. A. Hopper and M. H. Smith, coal operators, and Mrs. Evangeline Palmer, widow of Dr. Martin Palmer, turned to the old drug store and clinic.

"Could we convert it into a first class, modern clinic—enlarge it—more doctors, more offices, laboratory facilities?"

And they did.

Smith and Hopper has just completed extensive construction on an addition to the First Presbyterian Church, and we're still interested in doing more around Hazard.

In a short time, there was formed what is now the Begley Realty Co., Inc., the business organization that owns the new building on East Main Street.

It included Dr. Begley, president, Smith, vice-president, Hopper, secretary-treasurer, and included as stockholders, Dr. D. L. Upchurch, Dr. C. H. Williams, Dr. Eli Boggs, Dr. C. E. Rutledge, Dr. C. L. Combs and Mrs. Palmer.

The new clinic became more than a reality when Dr. Begley's mother, Mrs. Laura Begley, sold the group the land that has since become the parking lot—in these days, no small matter in any business calculation.

Ground for the new building was broken last May. Simple in design, the four stories are of steel frame, covered in yellow brick.

This Saturday you can see the results—and if you're gonna do any dreaming in the future—do it over a cup of coffee. You never can tell just what might happen!

P.T.A.'s to Celebrate Founders Day

Mrs. Charlecia Taylor
This month at Parent-Teacher Association meetings throughout the nation, the observance of the 61st birthday of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers is being celebrated, paying tribute to two of its founders, Mrs. Theodore Birney and Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst.

On February 17, 1897, Mrs. Birney, made her plea to the world, addressing the First Congress of Mothers, aided by Mrs. Hearst, at a convention in Washington with two thousand delegates, from every state in the union formed the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, seeing the needs of children, discussed such things as the practice of jailing offenders with hardened criminals; the miserable system of society for caring for underprivileged children; child labor, etc., realizing that the importance of Parents and Teachers needed more knowledge about children and their growth and development, and about the world in which children would grow into adult citizenship.

The suggestion was made on the outgrowth of this meeting that such a program could best be developed through state organizations. Work among Parents and Teachers to promote the welfare of children and youth through a close cooperation, existed as far back as 1910, School Improvement Leagues has been in operation having been stimulated by Miss Lida Gardner, they were organized as early as 1911. On April 27, 1918, with a membership of 600, the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers joined the National Congress.

Kentucky membership is some 170,181 and the National Congress membership is 10 million plus. Mrs. Raymond J. Bolton, Corbin, is president of the Kentucky Congress. The state P.T.A. office is located in Frankfort, in the State Department of Education, with Mrs. Dallas Brightwell, as executive secretary. Mrs. Rollin Brown, Los Angeles is National Congress president.

The Tenth District, Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers was organized in the year 1923. Mrs. J. M. Kinzer, Jenkins, Kentucky, was the first President of Tenth District. Mrs. Robert Snowden, of Campton, Ky. is District president with a membership of 1,979.

Many of the activities accepted today as a part of the community and school system have been encouraged by the Kentucky Congress. The National lists 51 giant accomplishments since 1897. Among these are sponsored and encouraged extension of library service, county libraries, and use of bookmobiles, new schools, gyms, auditoriums, home and traffic safety legislation. Issued a civil defense plan for Parent-Teacher Associations. Cooperated with the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in testing polio vaccine, scholarship fund, leadership conference was held at the University of Kentucky for the past two summers, which will take place, July 22-24 of this year. The Founders Day Fund helps to defray expenses of delegates. The Parent-Teachers Association has developed and continues always to develop public awareness of the needs of children and youth, striving to formulate public action toward the improvement of conditions in the community that contribute to the successful growth and development of its children.

New Book Reviews Life Of Famous Hotelman

One day during the Great Depression, hotelman Conrad Hilton, broke and living on a loan from one of his bellboys, came upon a picture of New York's Waldorf-Astoria. He scribbled "The Greatest of Them All" across the photo and slipped it under the glass top of his desk.

On a rainy evening 15 years later, Hilton recalls in "Be My Guest," his autobiography, recently published by Prentice-Hall, he stood under the Waldorf's dripping canopy, ignored by the resplendent doorman in his efforts to get a cab. In exasperation, Hilton's companion turned to the doorman and asked wistfully if he knew he was delaying "the gentleman who now owns the Waldorf." The day before, Conrad Hilton had capped his globe-circling diadem of hotels with "the greatest of them all."

To Hilton, the purchase of the Waldorf, the buying of the great Statler chain, and the building of hotels throughout the world were great adventures. Like all adventures, they had their share of danger (his partner on an early deal was shot by a man who thought he had been swindled). Yet they offered immense personal satisfaction: the thrill of achievement, the triumph of faith in a goal.

Conrad Hilton had been trained from childhood to tackle the risks of life head-on, and to wear life's rewards humbly. His father Gus was a rough-and-tumble trader in frontier New Mexico who built a sizeable fortune from nothing. His mother was a devout Catholic who taught her five children the strength of religion and the solace of prayer.

The Hiltons entered the hotel business out of necessity. When the 1907 depression evaporated much of Gus Hilton's fortune, the family took guests into their rambling adobe house in San Antonio, New Mexico. Mrs. Hilton cooked while Connie and his brother carried bags and ran errands. The family prospered again.

As a young man, Connie invested successfully in a bank, took a brief flyer in politics, and went to France with the AEF in WW I. Shortly after his discharge, he bought his first hotel.

The Mobley, in Cisco, Texas, was a run-down pile of brick that cost Hilton and a partner $40,000. Through hard work, close-to-the-chest management (Hilton and his partner slept in chairs to free beds) and canny planning (they divided the dining room into bedrooms) the Mobley made money.

A short time later, Hilton bought the Melba in Fort Worth then the Waldorf in Dallas. Shrewd Hilton management and Hilton service made them all successful, and young Conrad Hilton was off on the career that was to make him the world's No. 1 hotelman.

The Waldorf-Astoria became his in 1949. He started the in such glamorous hostelry as the Caribe Hilton in Puerto Rico and the Istanbul Hilton in Turkey. In 1954, he made his biggest purchase: $11 million for the famed Statler chain.

In "Be My Guest" Hilton tells frankly not only of his business ventures but of his personal life, including his ill-fated marriage to Zsa Zsa Gabor ("it was doomed from the start") which cost him as much to dissolve as it did to buy San Francisco's Francis Drake Hotel. Commenting on his divorce, Hilton writes, "It was a precious moment to me when I was able to approach the altar of son Nicky's marriage to Elizabeth Taylor and of the famous people he has met as the world's greatest professional host."

Sermon of the Week

Relocating Spiritual Dislocated Persons

"The Pilgrimage of the unnamed people, whom Jesus describes in this message as 'certain Greeks' who came up to Jerusalem asking to 'See Jesus' is a pilgrimage that repeats itself in every generation, and most certainly in ours."

Each of us will certainly appraise in our own way the significance of the revival of religious interest as of this day, and that it signifies a certain homelessness, a certain sense of estrangement besetting our age, that people crave to overcome. Yet in one sense resetting spiritually displaced persons is the age old business of religion and for us "Those certain Greeks" looms as one of the great religious facts, some of us may say that the religious man can not live without and the spiritually earnest man not escape, we all are aware of the fact that the mind and voice of Jesus still speak to us with authority.

It is a universal thought that some of us need to be relocated because of our Skepticism, our Skeptical attitude, our unbelief with regard to religion. If man will only discontinue the practice of skepticism he will find that there are new meanings that Jesus would unfold, ever there are depths in our lives still unopened, and there is always more light to shine from the face of Jesus.

Let us understand to begin with: When those first Greeks came seeking Jesus, they meant business. Otherwise Phillip would not have Andrew, nor would Andrew Jesus, and Jesus would not have troubled to have answered them as profoundly as he did. Now, this is to say that to be in earnest about seeing Jesus is The Starting Point of Faith.

What we find and what finds us in religion is usually in ratio to how earnestly we seek, and we can not begin to get located if we do not understand that, if it is a serious matter to believe in Christ, it is an equally serious matter to not believe.

"There are some modern Greeks," I can think of, is that they just do not mean business, there are so many of us that corrupt religion with the attitude of dilettantism, as if following some art of science as an amusement, or in a trifling way and confusing a mild curiosity about Jesus with a genuine desire to know him. And eventually resolve that some day that they will get round to business and see Jesus, "but never do" and you fail to understand that you can not postpone decision in religion simply because religion is life, and postponed decision is decision by default.

Those that will see Jesus will best see him in the witness and worship and the life of the church. If we are going to find and be found, it will be in the comradeship of fellow seekers and fellow finders, and the church in its widest sense is fellowship.

The pilgrimage of the spirit is too much for a man all by himself.

Phillips and Andrews reaching back through the centuries is too living and glorious a thing to be ignored in itself. "We can not get along alone in religion or anywhere else," this Christian life is not accidentally but necessarily corporate. If we are to see Jesus.

HE'S A SERGEANT'S DILEMMA... A CAPTAIN'S NIGHTMARE... A GENERAL RIOT!

TRUTH-AD FOR THE UNCHURCHED
By WINN T. BARR

The Bible phrase "obedience of faith" does not mean that works are means of salvation. It simply means that we are commanded to repent (Acts 17:30), and when we repent we are obeying God's command. It is the obedience of faith, not of works. Obedience is a broad word embracing all conformity to God's will, whether of faith by which we are saved, or of works by which we serve the Saviour.

The phrase "justified by works" does not mean that we are saved by works. "Justified" can mean the showing of righteousness that one already has, as well as the imputing of righteousness that one doesn't have. God is said to be justified in Rom. 3:4. That doesn't mean He is saved, but shown to be right. Abraham was justified by works before men when he offered Isaac in Gen. 22 (James 2:21). But he was justified by faith before God way back years before in Gen. 15:6. He was counted righteous by faith alone; he was demonstrated to be saved, by works which grew out of faith.

(All church members who read this column should bear in mind that it is not addressed to them. It is specifically addressed to the unchurched masses, to help them think clearly in the confusion of this world. Of course, church members can read it if they wish, but they should not construe it as being aimed at them.)

How to stay retired!

This retired builder
"TAKES LIFE EASY"
in his all-electric home...

During many years in the contracting business, Mr. R. E. Hartless built a lot of homes for other people. When he built a retirement home for himself and Mrs. Hartless, he wanted it to be "the most comfortable home I could provide."

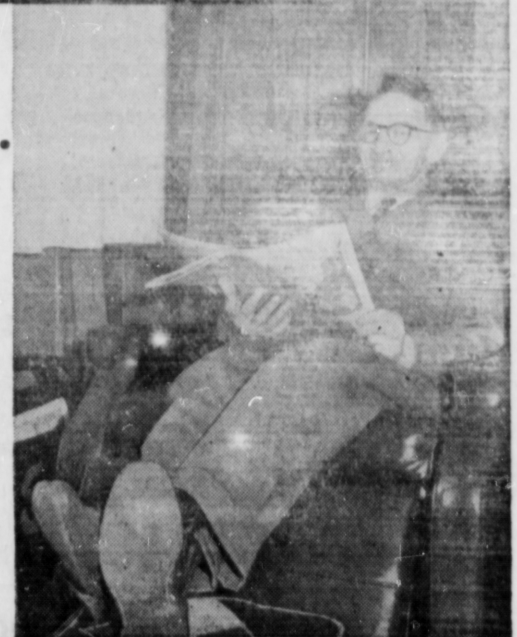

"I can't imagine a retired man who plans a lot of extra work for himself," Mr. Hartless says. "That's why I wanted the cleanliness and convenience of an electric heating system. No other heating method can come close to matching the advantages of electric heat."

"As a matter of fact, I'm so sold on electric heat that I installed it in two houses which I built to rent. I have found it keeps the renters happier, and they stay longer."

Mrs. Hartless appreciates the cleanliness and convenience of electric heat.

"There's no dirt at all," she says, "and I can keep my home spotless with little effort. Besides that, I can rearrange the furniture any way I wish without blocking heating registers."

"As for my electric appliances, each is a favorite, for it helps me keep up the home and have more free time to enjoy our children and grandchildren."

Modern Families Everywhere
Are Living Better Electrically

Mr. and Mrs. Hartless start their days off right, with breakfasts leisurely prepared with the help of electrical appliances.

Forestry Lessons

Forestry and timber and its uses are being taught in twenty-five schools to eighth grade students. The lessons are prepared by James A. Newman, Extension Specialist in Forestry from the University of Kentucky. Eighth grade teachers were sent the first lesson Monday, along with a suggested guide and other informational material on forestry. The lessons are to be taught each week until the series of eight lessons are completed. The lessons and other materials were checked and heartily endorsed by the County School Superintendent and his staff. All eighth grade teachers are urged to participate. Participation is voluntary.

The first lesson is titled "What We Get From Trees." Listed below are a list of articles obtained from trees: gunpowder, plywood, maple syrup, medicines, ball bats, barrels, railroad ties, matches, dyes, tannin, turpentine, tool handles, baskets, crates, veneer, telephone poles, rosin, fuel, charcoal, chemicals, gunstocks, wallboard, flooring, and fence posts.

Kiwanis Club

The Hazard Kiwanis Club, as part of "Keep Perry County Green program," is having Keep Green road signs repainted. The signs are on main highways and contain slogans urging fire prevention and conservation of forests.

LEATHERWOOD LOCALS

L'wood Teachers Returns To Eastern College

C. R. Mooney

Kenneth Londy and Harlan Shepherd recently reported to Ashland, Ky., for induction into the Army, but were rejected.

Mr. and Mrs. David King's daughter, Mrs. Eugene Glass, left Slomp this week to be with her husband who is in the Navy, stationed at Jacksonville, Fla. Mrs. Anna Mae Kilburn, of Delphia, who was the sixth grade teacher at Leatherwood School, has gone to Easter State Teacher's College to continue study on her degree. She shall be missed at Leatherwood school, especially by her pupils. She was replaced by Mrs. Logan King, of Slomp.

Sorry Mrs. Williams Patterson hasn't been feeling well this week.

New Gym
Everyone is looking forward to the first opening of the New Leatherwood gym. In fact, they are getting impatient because there has already been two postponements thus far.

Willard Adams was discharged from the Mt. Mary Hospital, last Saturday. He is back home now and his condition greatly improved, but he still has to wear a brace.

A car was stolen from Willard Little, of Blackey. The State Patrol found the car left in front of Arthur Minard's Custard Stand on Big Leatherwood Road. About that same time, another car was found burned below Blackey.

Mr. Farmer Johnson has been admitted to the Homeplace Hospital in critical condition.

Comment on Recreation
I congratulate those who are responsible for bringing to the attention of city officials the urgent need of a public recreation park. Why wouldn't it be possible for the City and County to work together in sharing the cost of this park, and perhaps the businessmen in and around Hazard would be glad to contribute a reasonable sum toward this effort.

I believe too if the Herald would conduct a vigorous campaign in presenting this need to the people they would also respond favorably.

(Ed's Note: The Herald has continually commented in editorials and articles on the absence of public recreation facilities in Perry County.)

I think that at times our benevolent attitude is too far reaching that we do not see the need about us.
